DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by USPN 5,121,544 to Gilbert.

Gilbert discloses the invention as claimed including a cutting device comprising a housing comprising first and second separable portions, 3 & 4, the first portion comprising a locking aperture 26, the second portion comprising an attachment aperture 28; and a locking apparatus for removably attaching the first and second portions of the housing, the locking apparatus comprising an attachment portion 27 adapted to be fixedly attached in the attachment aperture, and a locking arm 31 adapted to be releasably locked into the locking aperture. The attachment aperture and locking aperture are correspondingly positioned wherein the locking arm becomes aligned with the locking aperture when the first and second portions of the housing are aligned for assembly. The locking arm comprises an upstanding portion 29, an actuating arm 40, and a locking lip extending in a direction opposite from said actuating arm. The attachment means comprises a shoulder and extension (fig. 3).

Art Unit: 3724

3. Claims 7 & 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by USPN 5,813,121 to Gringer.

Gringer discloses the invention as claimed including an improved cutting device having a housing formed of first and second portions 4 & 6, a return spring 60, and a blade carrier 22 biased by the return spring, the improvement comprising a locking apparatus 10/66 for releasably attaching the first and second portions of the housing, the locking apparatus being integrally molded with the return spring and the blade carrier (fig. 43). Thumb piece 10 and aperture 66 are considered a locking apparatus because when the aperture 66 is secured onto pin 64 in the lower housing 6, and the thumb piece 10 has been inserted into opening 14 of the upper housing 4 and pushed forward as shown in figure 5, the upper and lower housings are locked together even after the release lever 18 has been released from locking lip 54 since thumb piece 10 cannot go through slot 8 and aperture 66 is held securely on pin 64 (see column 4, lines 20-21 and column 5, line 58 – column 6, line 18).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 5 & 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gilbert in view of USPN 6,349,473 to Schmidt.

Gilbert discloses the invention substantially as claimed, including a locking mechanism made of resilient plastic, but lacks a metal housing. Schmidt discloses a housing 12 made out of metal, and a locking mechanism 54 made out of plastic. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to make the first and second separable portions of Gilbert out of metal and make the locking device out of plastic since metal is durable and therefore suitable for a housing structure, and plastic is resilient, suitable for resilient locking devices.

6. Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gringer in view of Schmidt.

Gringer discloses the invention substantially as claimed, including a locking mechanism made of resilient plastic, but lacks a metal housing. Schmidt discloses a housing 12 made out of metal, and a locking mechanism 54 made out of plastic. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to make the first and second separable portions of Gringer out of metal and make the locking device out of plastic since metal is durable and therefore suitable for a housing structure, and plastic is resilient, suitable for resilient locking devices.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 6 & 8-11 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Shutt, Keklak et al., Abidin et al., Schmidt, Sinisi et al., Panaccione, and Wonderley are cited to further show the state of the art.
